DETROIT, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Completing the spectacular saga of the Deans with a history-making climax, the great Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean pitched St. Louis to the baseball championship of the world today with a record shut-out triumph, 11 to 0, as the Cardinal clouting crew slaughtered the pitching staff of the Detroit Tigers in as wild and riotous a finish as any World Series has ever witnessed.

The National league champions blasted the last defense of Mickey Cochrane's battered Bengals with a smashing seven-run attack in the third. They bombarded six pitchers all told for a total of 17 hits while Dizzy Dean, turning in the fourth victory for his team and family, emerged from the seventh and final game with the most lopsided shut-out in the history of the sport since Christy Mathewson blanked the Athletics, 9 to 0, in 1905.

Medwick Removed.
Before the flouting Cardinals dashed off the field with the final decision, four games to three, and their third world championship in nine years, they survived a riotous outburst by the left-field brawler fans who let loose a barrage of missiles, aimed at Joe (Ducky Wucky) Medwick, the demonstration interrupted the game for 17 minutes and subsided only after the St. Louis left-fielder and clean-up cloutier was removed from the game, mainly for safety's sake, by Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis.

The demonstration, one of the worst in series history, was prompted by a run-in at third base in the Cardinal half of the sixth inning, when Medwick slid into the bag after a booming triple to right and exchanged kicks with Marvin Owen, Tiger infielder. The two players almost came to blows before they were separated by players and umpires but Medwick's return to his position at the end of the inning was the signal for an outbreak by the thousands packed in the temporary open stands off left field.

Medwick was the target for fruit, hot dogs and a few dozen pop bottles, all of which he dodged before beating a retreat to the infield, where his teammates clustered around him. Yelling and booing, the crowd quickly littered up most of deep left field with food or anything else they could get their hands on.

NEW JERSEY ASKS FOR EXTRADITION OF LINDY SUSPECT

Gov. Moore Signs Papers Seeking To Remove Hauptmann From N. Y.
for Murder Trial.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Promising haste, Governor Herbert H. Lehman weighed tonight the request of New Jersey to try Bruno Richard Hauptmann for the kidnap-murder of baby Charles Lindbergh.
With the speed characteristic of all activities in the sensational abduction crime, the extradition papers were signed late today by Governor A. Harry Moore and brought to Lehman's New York home by the Jersey attorney-general.

"I shall study them and reach my decision without loss of time," the governor declared.
The executive with whom lies the power to send the close-mouthed German alien and ex-convict across the Hudson to face the murder charge will return to Albany early tomorrow. A decision was expected by some officials before tomorrow night.

New Witnesses Found.
The extradition request was coupled with the disclosure by Governor Moore that his state has a new unnamed witness, who said he saw Hauptmann at the Lindbergh Hopewell home, that March 1, 1932, night when the famous baby was stolen from his crib. With the extradition demand, the way was cleared for the kidnap-killing trial of the defendant in the country town of Flemington, N. J.—where the indictment was returned yesterday.

Foley announced he had acceded to the request of Governor Moore for a postponement of the extradition trial, which was set for Thursday. When the case is called he will ask the court.

Victims of Yugoslavian Gunman's Assault in France

While on a good-will trip to France, King Alexander, of Yugoslavia, (left), was shot and killed by an assassin at Marseille. Louis Barthou, France's minister of foreign affairs (at right), also was killed by the fusillade of bullets fired at the king as he and Barthou rode through a large crowd in an automobile. Petrus Kalemien, the assassin, identified as a Yugoslav, was so badly mauled and cut by the crowd and police that he died. (Associated Press photo.)

Murder Defendant To Take Stand in Federal Court Today.

Fred Pierce, of Gainesville, former supernumerary federal prohibition agent, will take the stand in his own defense today at his trial for murder in connection with the slaying two years ago of Clarence Denmore in Douglas county after a raid on a still.

The federal government, which is conducting Pierce's defense at the trial before Judge E. Marvin Underwood, paved the way for the Gainesville man's appearance on the witness stand Tuesday by presenting a witness in connection with the slaying two years ago of Clarence Denmore in Douglas county after a raid on a still.

Sjoblom Met Instant Death, Says Doctor at Riley Trial

State Presents Mass of Evidence Against Confessed Ride-Rob Slayer of Iowan.
Widow Identifies Clothes.

With the introduction of medical testimony to the effect that Max Sjoblom met instant death at the hands of the bandits who shot him down at Spring and Marietta streets on September 22, the state of Georgia began Tuesday afternoon to pile up a mass of evidence against Robert Riley, confessed slayer of the Iowa salesman. Riley's case was elected to be tried before that of Hoyt Summers, whom Riley in his confession implicated as his accomplice.

According to testimony of Dr. H. D. Kemper, of Jonesboro, a member of the coroner's jury which set in inquest in the wooded spot in Clayton county where Sjoblom's body was found, two shots were fired into the murdered man's body, one of which passed directly through the heart. In his opinion, the physician said, Sjoblom could not have lived more than a minute after the leaden bullet pierced his heart.

11-YEAR-OLD BOY PROCLAIMED KING

Peter, in School in En-land, Will Govern Under Regency.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Oct. 10. (Wednesday)—(AP)—A proclamation announcing the accession to the Yugoslav throne of Crown Prince Peter, 11 years old, now in England, will appear in Belgrade's morning newspapers. His title will be King Peter II.

The proclamation will state the army and navy already have taken oaths of allegiance to the new monarch.
Prince Paul, cousin of the murdered King Alexander, ruled temporarily today, awaiting the appointment of a regency of which he probably will be a member.

The government will designate General Peter Zhivkovich as premier to succeed Premier Zdanovitch, in order to strengthen the dictatorship and endow it with real military power.
Zhivkovich, chief of the royal guard and accused by the Croats of being "the cruelest of Serb oppressors," is regarded as the strong man of Yugoslavia.

The 11-year-old Crown Prince Peter Karageorge was engaged today in recreational activities with British boys at the Sandroyd school in Cobham, Surrey, England.
Then came word of the assassin's shot that tore him away from the peaceful English countryside, and tossed him into the troubled politics of the European scene. He will arrive in Paris today and go from there to Belgrade where he will become king and governor under a regency.

Peter celebrated his eleventh birthday September 9, at Blvd. Yugoslavia. He had looked forward to spending the whole day with King Alexander, in father and son intimacy, at the summer residence on a beautiful lake in Slovenia.
But Alexander was too busy with

EUROPE TREMBLES AT POSSIBILITIES OF NEW SARAJEVO

Only Bright Spot for Political Balance Upset.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

The structure of European diplomacy trembled Tuesday with the reverberations of the pistol fire that killed Louis Alexander, of Yugoslavia, and Louis Barthou, foreign minister of France. But, even as it trembled, the news that the assassin was a Yugoslav stilled the swaying of the structure.

From capital after capital came the reaction that it was fortunate for the continued peace of Europe that the nationality of the assassin minimized any possibility that he was the tool of a plot originating in some nation inimical to Yugoslavia.

At Paris, President LeBrun, gripped by the death of France's distinguished visitor and France's distinguished statesman, M. Barthou, shocked by the sudden smashing of Barthou's plans for co-operation with the king of Yugoslavia, set out hurriedly for Marseille to show his own and his nation's grief by his personal presence there.

Rumors of Mobilization.
In Vienna—Austria ran with rumors that the Yugoslav army was being mobilized to police the Italian and Hungarian borders and that Austria's own border guards were being strengthened.

In Rome—Italy's statesmen were deeply concerned over the double killing because of the nation's unsettled relations with Yugoslavia. Barthou was to have come to Rome in a few weeks for a conference with Premier Giolitti, which it was hoped would lead to lasting Italo-French rapprochement. Yugoslavia's position with respect to Italy, recently illuminated by bitter newspaper attacks in the two neighboring nations, was to be one of the subjects the scheduled conference might have affected.

The duke and Pope Pius dispatched messages of condolence on learning the news.
Regency To Be Named.
London saw "A terrible thing for Europe," plenty of cool thinking and acting needed—"were the remarks of leading statesmen here.

At Berlin—Chancellor Hitler sent his condolences to Belgrade and Paris. In Belgrade—The army was relied on to keep order until a regency is arranged to take the reins of government on behalf of young Peter, the heir of Alexander. Otherwise, his counted the possibility of Croats and other disaffected minority groups taking the assassination as a signal for a separatist uprising.

The assassinations created the deepest sympathy throughout Austria, which is still in mourning for the murdered Chancellor Dollfus.
In Belgrade—The army throughout the country were instructed to cancel musical programs. A celebration in Carinthia scheduled for today and tomorrow on the occasion of the tenth anniversary of the plebiscite which MARSEILLE, Oct. 9.—King Alexander, of Yugoslavia, dictator-ruler of the land where the World War spark flamed 20 years ago, and Foreign Minister Louis Barthou, France's champion of peace, were shot to death by a Yugoslav assassin five minutes after the king arrived here today.

From all the capitals of Europe came concern that the spectacular slaying would unsettle the balance of peace on the continent, although no immediate danger of war was foreseen.
To the Balkan throne in Alexander's stead will come the 11-year-old Crown Prince Peter, but upon a regency that may alter the makeup of the western world.

13 Others Wounded.
The bullets of the 35-year-old Croatian assassin, political enemy of the king's dictatorship, mowed down a policeman, gravely wounded a French general riding in the official automobile with the king and the foreign minister, and wounded 12 others before the slayer himself was killed.

The assassin, a native of Zagreb, named Petrus Kalemien, was armed with one repeating pistol of sub-machine gun type, of German make, and a small bomb which he had no chance to use.

Police said he probably came to Marseille especially for the purpose of assassinating the king.
20 Bullets Fired.
He broke through police lines holding back huge crowds cheering the king, whose visit had been hailed as the harbinger of peace, and leaped to the running board of the royal machine.

He sprang across the body of a policeman whom he shot from out of his path. A spray of bullets came from his special gun containing twin rapid-fire charges of 10 bullets each. In the wild scene General Joseph Georges, of the French supreme war council, was shot in the abdomen. He was pronounced in a grave condition in a Marseille hospital. Police Inspector Perrier, five other men, five women and a 14-year-old boy were struck by bullets. Later it was theorized some of the shots came from the weapons of the surprised police.

Two men found near the assassin were arrested, but officials of the ministry of the interior said they were convinced Kalemien acted alone. Several witnesses reported they saw five or six men near him armed with

British Labor Leader Urges Fight Against Dictatorships

Building Trades Dispute Expected To Come Before A. F. of L. Convention for Final Decision.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 9.—(AP)—An appeal for the assistance of American labor in building up "a mass of hostile opinion" against such dictatorships as those of Italy and Germany was made to the American Federation of Labor convention here today by Walter M. Citrine, secretary of the British Trades Union Congress.

Citrine referred to the fascism of Italy and Germany as "the greatest danger to democratic institutions today." He said not less than 2,000 persons had been killed in a "reign of terror" accompanying the rise of fascism in Italy and that similar things had occurred in Germany.

But for the financial help of reactionary employers, he said, "fascism would not have been possible in either country."

While awaiting a report that would bring the fight between the building trades council and three "outside" construction unions to the convention floor, the federation passed resolutions designed to help public schools, and one assailing the labor policies of Koehler & Company, Wisconsin manufacturing firm whose employees recently went on strike.

Delegates said they expected the building trades dispute to come before the convention shortly for a final fight.

The building trades has refused to readmit the three "outside unions"—the bricklayers, the carpenters and the electrical workers, with a total membership of 575,000—to the department. The federation executive council declared the building trades action illegal.

Unless an adjustment committee settles the issue shortly, the dispute will be taken to the federation convention floor. In effect, the charter of the building trades council is at stake as between the warring factions.

The British delegate charged the dictatorships of Italy and Germany had destroyed personal liberty, crushed trade unionism and reduced the citizenry to serfdom.

In Italy, he said, the fascist regime, making great concessions to reactionary employers, reduced wages, lengthened the working day by two hours, cut overtime pay and increased the taxes of the farmers and the poor. He said the wage reductions were from 40 to 60 per cent since 1927.

Speaking of Germany he said there was no free press, no right of public meeting and no intellectual liberty.

KENTUCKY ATTORNEY, D. P. SMITH DIES HERE

Denay P. Smith, prominent Kentucky lawyer and father of Ben Smith, of Atlanta, died at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning at an Atlanta hospital of heart trouble. He was 66 and had been ill several months.

Mr. Smith was formerly a member of the Kentucky house of representatives and had also served as commonwealth attorney for his district for 18 years. He resided in Hopkinsville but burial will take place at Cadiz, his former home.

The former legislator was author of many political articles carried in Kentucky newspapers and was widely known in the state for his opposition to the Kentucky sales tax. He advocated placing the responsibility of government directly upon the governor, so that official could be held accountable to the people for all governmental acts.

He was brought to Atlanta Saturday by his wife and son, and the body was taken to Cadiz Tuesday night by H. M. Patterson & Son. He is also survived by a daughter, Miss Martha Terry Smith.

Scenes in 'Rob-Ride' Murder Trial

planned to be offered by the defense, was dealt a shattering blow with the report of three alienists Tuesday morning to the effect that Riley is sane, practically every witness was cross-examined, and objections were offered at every turn.

Legal Tilt.

The principal legal tilt of the day came when the state introduced testimony by E. H. Griggs, of 1223 Sella avenue, that the pair attempted to hold him up in front of the Red Rock building on the same evening. Over the vigorous objection of M. H. Hicks, of the court-appointed counsel for Riley, Judge Howard admitted testimony of the two men for the purpose of showing conspiracy and the association between Riley and Summers.

Harkins then related the circumstances of the alleged holdup in which he was left tied to a tree, and Griggs told how Riley broke the glass of the former's automobile door when refused entrance, Riley receiving a bad cut on his hand.

Griggs testified that Riley struck him a blow on the head with his gun when he resisted him and his companion, and that the gun was discharged twice in the scuffle.

Several witnesses who were present at Morrison's lunch stand at

Spring and Marietta streets, were called as witnesses and testified as to having heard two shots and seen a dark-colored coupe quickly leave the scene.

Mrs. Dorothy Sanders and her mother, Mrs. H. H. Harris, customers at the lunch stand near which the holdup took place, identified Hoyt Summers when he was brought into the courtroom as one of two men whom they saw at the corner of Spring and Marietta streets just before they heard two shots. Several employees of the lunch stand also appeared as witnesses and told of having heard the shots.

Movements of the pair after the holdup and shooting were traced by the state to College Park later in the evening. Dr. M. P. Anderson, druggist, testified that the two men came into his store at about 11 o'clock the night of the killing and called a cab. He said that Riley's clothes were blood-stained, and that he had inquired as to his injured hand and was told that it had been cut in a "scuffle."

Widow Calm.

Appearing in the courtroom with her mother, Mrs. W. L. Carling, Mrs. Sjoblom was calm throughout the ordeal of listening to the numerous witnesses. She turned her head aside and shuddered several times when Sjoblom's blood-soaked garments were held up for inspection by the various witnesses.

Movements of the youths Sunday morning following the crime were further traced by testimony of T. C. Laird, operator of a restaurant in Kirkwood. He said that Riley came in Sunday morning and paid him for some sandwiches he and Summers had bought the afternoon previous, Riley telling him at that time that he "had not got his money yet" and would pay him later.

The state began piling up its testimony at 2 o'clock, after practically the entire morning had been devoted to the slow task of selecting a jury. Five panels of veniremen were called to the box before the 12 men were seated.

Seventeen veniremen were dismissed on their expressed opposition to capital punishment, and the defense exhausted 17 of 20 possible strikes before the final panel was agreed upon.

One venireman, J. A. Dotter, East Point barber, was excused when he said in answer to routine questions, that he had already formed an opinion adverse to the prisoner.

Mother in Court.

Throughout the day, Riley, his coal-black hair neatly slicked, and wearing sideburns, sat immobile. Not once did he speak to his counsel or to his aged mother, who sat next to him, her head supported sometimes on her hands, and now and then leaning over on her husband's shoulder. The mother, Mrs. J. C. Hughes, kept her head bowed hour after hour. In mid-afternoon she retired from the courtroom while the stepfather remained throughout the day. He did not glance at Riley during the examination of the numerous witnesses.

Solicitor-General John A. Boykin and his chief assistant, Ed Stephens, are handling the prosecution. M. G. Hicks, R. G. Turner and John McKinley, appointed by Judge Howard, are representing Riley.

The 12 men who will decide Riley's fate are: F. H. Hertwig, 960 Greenwood avenue, freight agent; C. M. Sanders, 167 Richmond street, salesman; C. L. Donaldson, 196 Twelfth street, employed at Electric Sales & Service Company; J. H. Mize, Center Hill, machinist; J. C. Souter, Hapeville, dairyman; Oscar Gershon, 392 Atlanta avenue, with Gershon Printing Company; H. T. Anglin, 100 McClelland drive; Jim Kingston, Macon drive; F. A. Wall, 451 Lawton street, clerk; B. C. Woodall; Alex. Reeves, 75 Ponce de Leon avenue, president Reeves Marble Company, and R. A. Garner, 78 Peachtree Hills avenue, insurance salesman.

NEW JERSEY ASKS FOR EXTRADITION OF LINDY SUSPECT

handwriting, made no comment on the extradition request.

Previously, he had stated he would vigorously oppose such an attempt.

He boarded a train tonight at Trenton for New York, saying he would make a statement tomorrow.

Governor Lehman, after a conference with Wilentz, Foley and others, injected into the case the possibility of habeas corpus proceedings by Fawcett in an attempt to halt the extradition.

"The defense," the governor said, "has the right to appeal to the court for a writ of habeas corpus immediately after the extradition papers are signed."

In view of Fawcett's silence on the extradition request, there was conjecture on whether he was considering such a move.

Governor Lehman can grant the extradition without holding a hearing if he deems the evidence sufficient.

The warrant for Hauptmann's arrest, accompanying the extradition papers, named Captain John Lamb, of the Jersey police, to assume jurisdiction over Hauptmann when the request is granted.

Lamb was present at the governor's house at the conference tonight. This, for a time, lent credence to a rumor the transfer might be effected.

But the governor's statement and the return of the Jersey officials to their home stifled the report.

In disclosing the surprise witness, Governor Moore said: "If his story can be believed, it will sew up the case against Hauptmann."

This witness is the first to place Hauptmann at the scene of the crime. His identity, Moore said, may be made public tomorrow.

Attorney-General Wilentz said Moore's comment was the first intimation he had of the new entrant into the case.

Trial Expenses Appropriated.

Governor Moore also announced $15,000 was appropriated today to bear the first expense of the murder trial at Flemington—the entire cost of which will be paid by the state to unshoulder the burden from the rural county of Hunterdon.

As the state decided to ask for immediate extradition, permission was granted to Defense Attorney Fawcett to examine the 15 ransom notes—all identified by experts as the handwriting of Hauptmann.

Fawcett went to Trenton with an expert retained by the defense, Aaron Lewis.

He conferred with Schwarzkopf and Wilentz.

Afterward, the attorney-general announced: "Mr. Fawcett can have anything he wants with reference to those notes, originals, photographs and all. If I had any feeling the notes weren't on the level, I wouldn't want the case."

Interested only in the ransom notes now.

Case Strengthened.

The mass of circumstantial evidence and identifications linking the stolid stowaway to the crime was greatly strengthened by the disclosure of Colonel Schwarzkopf last night that Lindbergh had identified Hauptmann's voice as the one heard that night in St. Raymond's cemetery in the Bronx when "Jafsie"—Dr. John F. Condon, aged welfare worker and intermediary—paid over the $50,000 ransom.

District Attorney Foley today amplified the circumstances of this identification of the numerous witnesses.

That night, as "Jafsie" walked along the hedgerow bordering the cemetery, the flyer awaited in his automobile near by.

The kidnaper knew Lindbergh and "Jafsie" would come alone.

"Jafsie" proceeded down the dark road. He peered over the hedge, saw no one.

Then, in loud tone, he said: "I guess there is no one here. I'd better go back."

In the stillness of the night, there came a reply from behind a tombstone: "Hey, doctor."

This was the ransom recipient. While Lindbergh, wearing dark glasses, a cap pulled down over his eyes, sat among a group of detectives in Foley's office a week ago, unknown to the prisoner, Hauptmann was asked innumerable questions by the district attorney.

Frequently, Foley would have Hauptmann say "Hey, doctor."

Lindbergh studied the voice for 10 minutes. He quickly noted the German quality. He heard it at various pitches, from various angles, at different distances.

Then he came to the conclusion the voice was the same as that of the ransom recipient.

This was deemed doubly important in view of the past announcement that "Jafsie" had not positively identified Hauptmann as the man to whom the ransom was paid in vain.

Vain—because Baby Lindbergh already lay dead in the Sourland mountain woods near the Hopewell home from which he was snatched.

Mother Asserts Mrs. Vanderbilt Lax in Attention Toward Daughter

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Laura Kilpatrick Morgan, mother of Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, testified today that her daughter "didn't pay much, if any, attention" to her granddaughter, 10-year-old Gloria Vanderbilt.

Trial of the habeas corpus action to determine custody of the little heiress went on behind closed doors in supreme court but at the close of court Justice John F. Carew summarized the testimony for the reporters whom he had excluded.

Mrs. Morgan appeared as a witness against her daughter and for the child's aunt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, who now has her in charge. She has submitted a detailed affidavit giving instances of supposed neglect and harsh treatment of Gloria by her mother.

As stated by Justice Carew, Mrs. Morgan testified that about three weeks after Gloria's birth, she selected a nurse, and from then on she and the nurse "practically took charge of the child."

"She would not be allowed to make such a statement," he replied, "that would not be competent evidence."

Asked whether Mrs. Morgan's testimony substantiated statements in her affidavit, Justice Carew said he had not read the affidavit and that it "slipped in" among the papers in the case.

Mrs. Morgan, he asserted, was not asked about her daughter's associations, nor did she tell about any "cousins" in the Paris home of Mrs. Vanderbilt. She did speak in "kind of general terms" about the social life there and mentioned that there were rats in the house, he said.

Many letters from Gloria to her grandmother were introduced in evidence. Justice Carew described them as "childish letters" expressing love for "Nanny"—Mrs. Morgan—but not saying whether the little girl was unhappy or afraid of her mother, as has been testified.

At the morning session Marie Callender, former French maid of Mrs. Vanderbilt, was cross-examined about her previous testimony of an incident involving Mrs. Vanderbilt and Lady Mifford Haven.

Justice Carew said that Mrs. Vanderbilt's lawyer tried in his cross-examination to make the incident seem an innocuous expression of friendship and "feels he has introduced it a lot," though Mrs. Whitney's lawyer felt the story had not been shaken.

Mrs. Vanderbilt appeared in court with her sister, Mrs. Benjamin Thaw, and Oliver K. Gardiner.

TVA Refuses To Recognize Alabama Board Jurisdiction

Lilienthal Will Be Requested by Council To Attend Hearing in Nashville Today.

today informed the Alabama public service commission that it could not recognize its jurisdiction over the TVA utility activity in the state.

The information was conveyed in a letter replying to a communication from the commission on September 21, concerning appearance of representatives of TVA in Birmingham October 23, at a hearing in which the proposed sale by the Alabama Power Company, to TVA of $2,000,000 of its property was being contested.

In this letter, which the Alabama public service commission made public after the authority's stand had been published, the former held that the matter of jurisdiction "will ultimately be determined by the court."

The commission also stated that it agreed for any TVA representative to appear as a witness for the Alabama Power Company, or for the 14 municipalities named in the state petition.

TVA Cites Attitude.
In its letter, the TVA held that if it is answerable to congress, that the directors could not permit a change without violating their oaths of office, that its rates already had proven themselves, and that the pro-

Chattanooga Buy Gas For 16 1-2 Cents Gallon

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Oct. 9. (UP)—Chattanooga bought gasoline today for 16 1-2 cents a gallon as a "price war" between independents and other distributors continued. Prices previously had ranged from 22 to 24 cents.

Two independent dealers had announced they would sell gasoline for 11 1-2 cents per gallon under standard prices. Distributors cut to 18 cents today and independents promptly reduced their prices to 16 1-2 cents.

The next move, if any, was delayed until tomorrow, since under the NRA code, posted prices cannot be changed for 24 hours.

gram of the president and congress in Alabama was being delayed by pending litigation.

"With all respect," the authority letter said, "it disagreed with the Alabama public service commission's position, 'not merely as a matter of law, but as a matter of the basic policies of the program of the president and the congress.'"

"Since your commission cannot directly determine the rates and rate policies of this national agency," the authority wrote, "it should not try to do this indirectly by calling for testimony concerning matters clearly beyond your control."

The letter was to advise the commission officially that the TVA would comply with its request to send executives to a hearing on a proposed purchase of $2,000,000 in property from the Alabama Power Company, in Birmingham on October 23, only if the commission agreed that such attendance would not be held as recognition of its jurisdiction over the TVA.

The hearing in Birmingham is on the transfer of transmission lines which the Alabama public service commission had approved, but which was set aside by a decision of Judge Leon McCord here as the result of a suit brought by coal and ice operators, charging the order was illegal in that a hearing had not been held as required by law.

LILIENTHAL WILL ATTEND HEARING IN TENNESSEE
NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 9.—(AP) After attorneys representing petitioners objecting to the sale of private-owned utility properties to the Tennessee Valley Authority had demanded his appearance, counsel for the TVA said today it would request David E. Lilienthal, power director of the Authority, to attend a hearing on the sale tomorrow.

The hearing, held before the state railroad and public utilities commission, involves the purchase of Tennessee Public Service Company properties at and near Knoxville by the TVA for $8,191,000.

Forney Johnston, Birmingham, of counsel for petitioners, objecting to the transaction, moved that the hearing be suspended after asserting that he was "amazed at the efforts of representatives of the TVA to block this inquiry into the transaction."

Johnston demanded a TVA report on which a standard schedule of power rates was based and was told by Lewis Evans, chief TVA electrical engineer, that he could not give a "preview" of the report until it had been submitted to President Roosevelt.

Johnston, besides demanding that Lilienthal attend the hearing, asked the commission to order the TVA to submit the report and other information. He described Evans' testimony as "pathetic" and said the TVA had not observed a pledge "to keep all its records open to the public at all times."

He charged that Lilienthal evaded service of a subpoena for his appearance at the hearing issued by the commission last week.

PRACTICABILITY OF TVA PROVED, SAYS WALSH
WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP) Frank P. Walsh, New York state power authority chairman, expressed the opinion today that the government experiment in the Tennessee valley had "confirmed the practicability" of plans for development of the St. Lawrence for power and navigation.

Returning from the valley after a first-hand inspection with other authority trustees, the chairman said he was convinced "what is being done by the Tennessee Valley Authority is a thing that as rates were reduced the use of current increased, until 'even private companies under prudent and honest management would share in the benefits.' This was no longer a theory, he added, but a demonstrated fact at Muscle Shoals and throughout the Tennessee valley.

"Our inspection convinced the trustees," said Walsh, "that nothing can stop the Tennessee Valley Project. Power interests which opposed the development in the blue print stage have been compelled by its success to withdraw open opposition to the government plan. An effort is still being made to deprive the public of some of the benefits of the TVA by insisting upon state regulation of its low rates, but this effort cannot succeed."

"This means more jobs in this emergency and future prosperity on a stable basis."

Walsh recalled that President Roosevelt, when governor of New York, had insisted there was no such thing as a surplus of power, on the theory that as rates were reduced the use of current increased, until "even private companies under prudent and honest management would share in the benefits." This was no longer a theory, he added, but a demonstrated fact at Muscle Shoals and throughout the Tennessee valley.

STEWART, INSULL LINKED IN LETTER

State Seeks To Prove Officials Kept 'Assets' of Firm Hidden.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Government prosecutors, with a mountain of 2,500 documents to choose from, opened fire in the Insull mail fraud trial late today with one short letter, exchanged, they asserted, between officials of Halsey Stuart & Company, La Salle street investment house.

Special Assistant Attorney-General Leslie E. Salter, who in fighting defense objections, had termed the letter "the heart of this case," read it to the jury as part of the government's description of how Samuel Insull's corporation securities company, of Chicago, was formed in October of 1929.

The prosecutor emphasized one phase. It said:

"The minute we disclose the assets of the company it will in great measure defeat the purpose of the whole thing."

V. Lamont, former comptroller of Halsey Stuart & Company, and now operating a poultry farm at Cree Lake, Ind., identified the initials "C. B. S." on the bottom of the letter as those of Charles B. Stuart, vice president of Halsey Stuart & Company and in charge of its New York office.

Initials Identified.

Lamont also testified that initials on a carbon copy taken from the files of Corporation Securities Company were those of Harry L. Stuart, president of the investment banking house, and Clarence T. Mac Neille, secretary-treasurer of Corporation Securities Company.

Prior to introduction of the letter earlier minutes had been read to show that the Corporation Securities Company was organized in October, 1929, by the "I. Interests," composed of Samuel Insull Sr., his brother, Martin J., and his son, Samuel Jr., and by H. L. Stuart, C. B. Stuart and Charles W. Sills.

The letter, dated August 29, 1929, was addressed to F. K. Shrader, vice president in 1929-31 of Halsey Stuart & Company and a director of the Corporation Securities Company, of Chicago. As read to the jury it said:

"In connection with the new company I told my brother this morning in my opinion I thought we would make a great mistake in listing either the preferred or the common stock on any exchange. It will always be an easy matter to list it later if we desire to do, but it will be very difficult to ever get it off any exchange."

"I do not know how Goldman Sachs and the rest of them get by the blue sky laws. But, certainly, there must be some answer to it. Even though we have to stay out of some of the states I cannot see that it makes a great deal of difference.

"Isn't there some way we can sell in the state of Illinois on the basis that a purchaser accepted it knowing that it has not been qualified. If we cannot do it this way, would it not be possible to make all confirmations from New York city and in this way could we not get around the Illinois blue sky laws?"

"In my opinion, the minute we disclose the assets of the company it will, in great measure, defeat the purpose of the whole thing."

"My brother is in favor of not listing any place, if there is any way around it. It is my understanding that in listing on the curb we do not have to disclose all of the assets at any time. Another possibility of listing down here would be the produce exchange."

"What about the requirements of the curb market in Chicago?"

Earlier government attorneys won a two-and-a-half-hour legal battle with spokesmen for the eight defense lawyers and succeeded in putting into evidence the minute books which were the corporate "diary" of the Corporation Securities Company.

NRA CONSTITUTIONALITY TO BE ARGUED TODAY

CINCINNATI, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Constitutionality of two pillars of the Roosevelt recovery program will be argued before the sixth district United States court of appeals here tomorrow.

The judges will hear arguments on which to decide whether the AAA is constitutional, and whether the AAA is constitutional, and whether the NRA is "the holdest kind of usurpation."

That charge was made by District Judge Charles I. Dawson, of Louisville, in handing down a decision appealed to the court here. Issuing a temporary injunction to restrain enforcement of wage-hour provisions of the NRA code in the eastern Kentucky field, he charged that the NRA constituted an "unwarranted invasion" upon the rights of the states and of the people.

But, though one of the suits to be argued involves milk, and the other coal, the basic issue is the same in each. Obtaining temporary orders restraining prosecution, both eastern Kentucky coal operators and Louisville, Ky., milk dealers, charged that congress can not impose regulations upon them that they do not operate in interstate business.

Both contended that, because their activities do not cross state lines, they are not subject to federal scrutiny.

THE GUMPS—ON THE PAN

THE LAUGHING GIRL MYSTERY

By Viola Paradise

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE: As Sheridan Dinard is hurrying up the stairs to the New York studio apartment of his fiancée, Adelaide Sayre, a girlish laughter is cut off short by a door slamming. Mr. Dinard, who owns the building, while he is at their country place a beautiful girl is found dead from a stab wound in their room. When Sheridan hears the laughter he remarks to a maid, the colored super, an exact description and in the presence of Adelaide and Lester Wilcox, but Sheridan laughingly says it is easy for an archaeologist to reconstruct a girl from her laugh. Both Sheridan and Wilcox are connected with the private museum of Dr. Coggs, an Egyptian statue, taken from Dinard's desk, had been used as a door knocker to hide a newly-bored peephole in the Coggs' hall door. A Florentine dagger, hidden in the museum and Marlin, the English caretaker, disappears. He had made love to Susan Brown, his landlady's daughter. Dr. Coggs, supposed to be at his country place, appears at the museum in a daze. Joe Harrod, working with Dinard, the murderer, Alby, who has been going to get the dagger to where they found it. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

he Coggs' apartment. It won't be long. "Just a minute, Sherry. Someone's at the door." Sheridan held the wire. It was rather a long time. At last she returned to the telephone. "Please hurry, Sherry."

"Dear! Is something wrong? What is it?" "No, nothing. That is—it's only that they've been asking me questions."

"Who?" "Some more police inspectors. And they've searched the house."

"The brutes. But don't worry, dear. It's just a routine they've got to go through. If you were a policeman, wouldn't you do the same? They were not unpleasant about it, were they?"

"No—but—" "But what, darling? I can tell that you're worried."

"Sherry, they found something." Dinard and Alby had spoken as the taxi hurried them down to Twelfth street. But at the entrance to the house, Sheridan said, "You won't want me further? I'm worried about Miss Sayre."

Miss Sayre can wait a few minutes. Seeing the Coggs' apartment again, even without the lavender-eyed girl, may prod your memory."

Sheridan shrugged. Mrs. Coggs opened the door. Her face, by daylight, seemed to Sheridan more fondle and greedy than ever.

"Well, I'm glad you came, Mr. Alby. And now I'd like you to clear your police out of my house. They won't let me scrub the place on my rug. And the while it'll get deeper and deeper in."

"Mamma, stop fawin' about that rug," Mr. Coggs limped close behind her. "Well, Mr. Alby, got the murderer yet?"

"Not yet."

"Not yet? We'd like another look around, please. The person who did it was apparently familiar with your apartment, and your week-end habits. Perhaps some relative."

"We haven't any relatives," snapped Mrs. Coggs.

"No children?" "No," said Mr. Coggs. But Mrs. Coggs began to cry. Her face wrinkled up and became incredibly ugly.

"There, there, mamma," her husband said, and patted her arm while he explained to Alby, "She's never got over the loss. Right after the fire in San Francisco, it was. Now, now, mamma, shut up. And maybe Mr. Alby'll find who murdered the girl on your rug."

Alby led the way into the living room. Sheridan was once more assailed by the room's eerie familiarity—a different sort of familiarity, however, from that which the dead girl aroused. Yet he was sure that until last night he had never seen it or any room just like it. The single difference in it now was a pipe on the mantel, and the faint odor of pipe smoke in the house.

Alby picked up the pipe. "It's a nice one," he said. "New?" "Yes," snapped Coggs.

"And much more expensive than it should be," Mrs. Coggs grumbled. "He could just as well have used his old one and cleaned it out there."

Alby cut short the bickering by walking into the dining room, then the bedroom, the bathroom, and finally the kitchen in the last that he passed long, looking into the cupboards, the bread box and even lifting the lid of a pot on the stove. He looked at his watch. "I'll see you this afternoon." The district attorney's office, on Center street, Mr. too, Dinard.

As they reached the door, Mr. Coggs peered close into Sheridan's face. "I certainly met you some place," he said darkly.

"And you, Dinard," said Alby, "do you remember Mr. Coggs?" "I'm sorry, but I don't."

"Judging from the papers," Mrs. Coggs said tartly, "Mr. Dinard's memory is better for people he never saw before, like that girl that got herself murdered on my rug. With two empty apartments in the house, why she had to take mine—"

"Two empty apartments?" asked Alby sharply. "I understood there was only one."

"There's only one not rented—the one just above. But the people on the third floor, the Conleys, they're away for a month, but they're paying their rent," said Mr. Coggs. "You men went through their apartment last night."

"I think I'll have a look through those apartments," Alby said. "Don't wait, Dinard."

Coggs delayed Sheridan for a moment. "While you're here, Mr. Dinard—I asked Miss Sayre this morning about whether her aunt was thinking about renting her apartment again next year. Or if you and Miss Sayre, when you come back—"

"March is too early to talk about plans for the fall," Sheridan replied rather curtly.

He mounted the steps to Adelaide's two at a time. In a moment he had her in his arms. "Oh, darling!" she cried. "I thought you'd never get here! Hold me close, Sherry, I'm frightened!"

"You should have let me stay last night."

"Oh, it's not me I'm frightened about," Sherry, the papers this morning.

"Yes, they were ugly about me. I don't pretend to like it. But there's nothing more than annoyance to fear. Detective stories to the contrary notwithstanding, there's no danger of an innocent young man's being involved in a murder he didn't commit. Come, get your things on. It's after 11. We'll have a white lunch while you tell me what happened. No, no, I insist on getting some food into both of us first."

"All right. I'll be glad to get out. I feel as if the walls had eyes. When I opened the door to take in the paper this morning, there was a policeman there. He said he was just waiting until I got up, before they searched the place."

A few minutes later they were lunching at a near-by restaurant, and so deep in conversation that neither of them noticed an inconspicuous man who had taken a near-by table.

Adelaide described the searching of her apartment. "And they found a scratch on the back of the inside of the linen cabinet—on the shelf—"

"Where you keep your clean smocks. I saw it last night."

"Oh, then there was someone watching from the skylight?"

"The skylight? What on earth—"

"Sherry, after you left, as I went through the kitchen to the bathroom, I noticed a shadow, or rather I felt as if it were a shadow. But I told myself it was just imagination. And even this morning, when they found that scratch, I didn't connect it with the place."

"With my apparent clumsiness in spilling the smocks on the floor? I was wondering if the implement that made the scratch was hidden there."

"The scratch might have had no connection with the murder. I didn't want to frighten you needlessly. I thought somehow you, Moradia, might have had a knife in hand as you put the smocks away. It's still possible."

"It would be like her. But I didn't. On the other hand the murderer might have got the knife there. Oh, you tell me a million questions as to what work I did and just which minutes I had been away from the house yesterday. I did go to bed, but I couldn't remember the exact minutes. Once was about half an hour before you came, to mail my last batch of drawings. Some guy could have got in and have hidden the knife then. Or, if it had been hidden previously, could have taken it away. Or they could have done it during the evening while we were at the Ballards'."

"Well, until we've talked to Moradia, let's forget that scratch. They didn't find any other clues, did they?"

"No, they didn't, Sherry. But I did—a baggage check. It was in among the papers on my desk. But I don't see how they missed it."

"You took it down to them, of course."

"I didn't."

"Why on earth—here, give it to me."

"I haven't got it."

"Let's go back for it—"

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

THE STORY OF LAND TRAVEL. VIII—STEAM AUTOMOBILES. One hundred and sixty-five years ago a Frenchman named Cugnot drove the first automobile of which we have a clear record. It was a "steam wagon" with three wheels and with a large boiler in front. It ran at the rate of about two miles per hour—not so fast as a man can walk. Every little while it had to stop.

Steam coach used in England more than a century ago—one of the very early automobiles.

The thought of such a slow-moving automobile may bring a smile to us, but we must remember that the trip was made a long time ago. Cugnot deserves high honor for his fine work.

Frenchmen did not go ahead with the idea, but Englishmen did; and their bus-like steam coaches which went fast enough to make people afraid of them.

Goldsworthy Gurney won fame for the steam coaches which he designed and helped to build. In 1829 he used one of them to go from London to Bath and back again, at a speed of 15 miles per hour. One of the men who went with him reported:

"The success of the trip much exceeded what could have been expected. Hills were ascended with the greatest ease and safety. The machine far surpassed horse-drawn coaches."

Gurney's "horseless carriages" were very much like ordinary stagecoaches, except that they were fitted with steam engines. One of them was able to carry 18 passengers and had small "pilot wheels" in front in addition to four large wheels. It carried a load of coke and 60 gallons of water. A man named Tom Hood believed there was danger of the boiler exploding and wrote a kind of verse, which ran:

"Instead of journeys, people now
May go upon a Gurney.
"With steam to do the horses' work
"By power of attorney.
"Though with a load it may explode,
"And you may all be undone,
"And find you're going up to "Heaven."

"Instead of up to London," That was the jingle, but the fact was that Gurney's buses ran rather well and took many persons safely and rather swiftly, from place to place. Another Englishman, Walter Hancock, worked with steam coaches at about the same time and made trips with passengers who paid for the adventure.

Automobiles might have come into general favor if laws had not been passed to block their progress. One law ordered that a man with a red flag should go ahead of each coach and wave a red flag to warn people to get out of the way. This, and heavy toll taxes for bridges and roads brought an end to the brave efforts of the pioneers. More than half a century went by before the laws were set right.

"There's only one not rented—the one just above. But the people on the third floor, the Conleys, they're away for a month, but they're paying their rent," said Mr. Coggs. "You men went through their apartment last night."

"I think I'll have a look through those apartments," Alby said. "Don't wait, Dinard."

Coggs delayed Sheridan for a moment. "While you're here, Mr. Dinard—I asked Miss Sayre this morning about whether her aunt was thinking about renting her apartment again next year. Or if you and Miss Sayre, when you come back—"

"March is too early to talk about plans for the fall," Sheridan replied rather curtly.

He mounted the steps to Adelaide's two at a time. In a moment he had her in his arms. "Oh, darling!" she cried. "I thought you'd never get here! Hold me close, Sherry, I'm frightened!"

PHILLIPS, MARTIN GOOD IN DUKES FOR DUKE

Mehre, Displeased, Sends Varsity in Hour Ahead; Carolina Redoubles Work for Georgia Battle

TECH'S SQUAD TO BE READY FOR HARD GAME

Alex Rushes Work at Flats; Stresses Blocking in Scrimmage.

By Jimmy Jones.

Callow youngsters, wearing the crimson garb of the Tech freshmen, but impersonating the blue-clad hosts of Wallace Wade's Duke University football team deployed against the Georgia Tech in scrimmage yesterday with hastily assimilated Duke plays. The varsity line and backfield were alert for "Cornelius," "Alexander" and "Parker," etc., as the Freshman backs were so designated, and while the straight stabs and cut-backs they ran were not quite so potent as the Jackets will face in front of the Wade blocking, they at least drew a working knowledge of the Duke strategy.

And Coach Williams Alexander has set so many defenses for Wade teams, that he knows just about what to expect anyway, even if Head Slewth Mack Thaw had not returned from Durham with all that knowledge of Duke's mixture.

FIRST LOOK. Yesterday was the first look the varsity has had of this year's Duke attack, as symbolized in the freshman team. At that, however, they were scrimmaging a day earlier than usual for the simple reason that they would be farther advanced by Friday, when the workout will be out some what short to catch the 7:10 p. m. train for North Carolina.

The varsity men were on defense only for a comparatively brief time yesterday, however. They spent most of the afternoon sharpening up their own plays in a long offensive scrimmage, featured by the apparent return to form of Deatrice Jackson Phillips, the versatile fullback from Waynesville, N. C., who ripped the freshmen line with the vicious thrusts of the old Phillips and tackled like a demon on defense.

About all that the old war horse needs, anyway, is the mere mention of a Duke team to kindle his fighting spirit to a white heat. And yesterday, he seemed to be entirely oblivious of the fact that he ever had knee trouble as he smacked in there with the ball.

The big Tarheel had able assistance against the freshmen in another Carolina, "Sun Dial" Martin, the swift fullback from South Carolina, who ran the flanks with a lot of speed and drive. He didn't begin slowly but surely improving as a runner since his sophomore days and with Phillips back in there to help with the blocking and line plunging, he and the other halfbacks seem to have taken on more zeal and effectiveness.

HAYS IMPROVES. Lawrence Hays, the sophomore, and John McKinley, a junior, are another pair of backs who are coming along and Tech's attack should improve gradually with the coming of mid-October. It usually starts slowly and gains momentum in late October and November. Tech was a good November team last year, reaching its peak in the Alabama, Georgia and Duke contests after some mediocre play in early season.

Coach Alexander, who was back on the field after combating a troublesome cold, however, gave more attention to his blockers than the runners yesterday, particularly the blocking in the line. The Jacket blocking has been erratic and ineffective at times. They have the backs who can go if they can get the holes to go through, and someone who can shift through and knock down a man or so in the secondary occasionally.

St. coaches are concentrating on the blocking this week. The Tech pass defense, which was decidedly more helpful than harmful to Vandy last Saturday, due mainly to the penalty of the secondary for batting passes laterally and diagonally instead of downward, will come in for a bit of brushing up later on in the week.

Meanwhile the preparation for Duke has been accelerated by the general improvement in the physical condition. Mike Chambers, the demon trainer, experienced a rather novel situation at the scrimmage, since Phillips and the other injured players seem to be on the high road to complete recovery.

In fact, Mike sat with his medicine kit between his feet all afternoon, regaling operators with good Irish stories, being able to forsake the training room for the first time in weeks. The freshmen line is composed of some rather rugged individuals, and it is a hard tackling team, both up front and in the secondary. Therefore Mike made it a point to present with the medicine bag, even if he wasn't needed.

Chambers, as well as the other members of the Tech staff, were particularly curious about Phillips' ability to take it, but the big boy is showing no signs of being bothered by the "ex-limbed" knee.

'Lucky' Medwick Dared Twenty Fans To Fight But Judge Landis Wasn't a Boxing Fan and Waved Him Out of Game.

By Henry McLemore.

DETROIT, Oct. 9.—(UP)—It was pay day in the baseball mines, so the St. Looney sent Dizzy Dean down to collect the dough. Just to make sure he got the swag, the test of the Cardinal rowdies came along with blood in their eyes, and swinging hickory clubs.

They got it, yanking Eiden Auker, then Schoolboy Rowe, then a guy named Hogsett and finally Tommy Bridges, from behind the cashier's cage, to walk off with everything in sight, including the baseball championship of the world.

This was the real St. Looney ball club that won the seventh and final game today. A tough, wicked swinging, ornery, hairy-chested, collection of gents who played ball with brass knuckle meanness. They made it plain to the Detroit crowd that this was for the dough, and that it would be played for keeps.

CARDS IN THERE. From the first pitched ball the Cards were in there swinging from their stumps, running the bases like Bronco Nazrud going off tackle, and taunting the Detroiters with names that would have made the Virginian yank his forty-fish.

Before this rugged individualism, the Tigers curled up like boarding house wall paper, and the roughies ran wild. And all the while Dizzy, his long right arm cracking like a blacksnake whip, plowed the ball by with opposition.

War broke out in the sixth inning when Jim Medwick, St. Looney left fielder, slid into third base, feet held high, spikes clanging in the sun. Third Baseman Owen bravely met the assault, and was knocked off the diamond and into the coaching box.

When Medwick moved into left field at the third, the bleachers went wild. Fans beat him back with a barrage of bottles, oranges, apples, and anything else they could lay their hands on. Four times Medwick tried to gain his footing, and four times the bleacher boys and girls chased him back.

CHALLENGES TWENTY. Medwick was all for staying out there until the fans got tired or exhausted their ammunition. "Twenty of you guys line up," he called to his tormentors, safe behind a fence, "and I'll take you on one at a time. And I'll bet the nineteenth guy a buck he won't last a round."

But Judge Landis, who isn't a fight fan, jerked his regal thumb, and Medwick went out of there. But by the time the St. Looney could have used Baby Leroy in left field and won in a walk.

TIGERS UNABLE TO HIT DIZZY

Continued From First Sports Page. hit by Jim Collins, who featured the day's clouting by getting four straight hits to equal a series record. Medwick's first game performance. Two more runs came over in the ninth on Durocher's triple, a fumble by Gehring on Martin's ground ball, and a double to right by Rothrock.

MARTIN LEADS PARADE. To help make the rout complete, the speedy Martin took advantage of two bases and led the scoring parade with three runs. Every player in the Cardinal lineup got at least one hit and all scored at least one run. The team total of 17 hits was only three short of the World Series record, as Fred Marberry and Alvin (General) Crowder finished the pitching chores for the Tigers. Crowder, who hurled only the last inning, was the only pitcher to escape without yielding a base hit and it looked as though the veteran right-hander, even in his 49th year, would have a shining condition, had planned to start Rowe for the second straight day, but turned to Auker, the former Kansas State athlete hero and winner of the fourth series game, when the Schoolboy developed a mysterious sore hand after yesterday's defeat.

TRUMPH FOR DEANS. The first victory for the Tigers, 25 years, as well as historically. It was a complete triumph for the famous "Sun Dial" Martin, who accounted for all four of the Cardinal victories as they lived up to their reputations and carried the main burden of pitching defense, just as they did in rolling up 49 victories during the regular National League season. Paul (Lil) Brother Dean, finished with the best record, winning both his games, including yesterday's exciting battle, but Dizzy crowned his comeback with the only shutout of the series. Dizzy's iron man performance in hurling the Cardinals to the pennant and then pitching three World Series games in seven days ranks among the best in baseball history.

The Cardinals fought their way to the National league's third triumph in four years with the same sort of come-back they pulled in 1926. That was the year they went back to New York, trailing 2-3 in games, and won the last two from the Yankees with the aid of Grover Cleveland Alexander's great pitching. Again in 1931, with Pepper Martin running wild, the Cardinals won a seven-game series so that they have kept intact their record of having not been beaten in a fight to the finish.

WON'T GO STALE. The Northwestern team won't be stale from too much practice before the Stanford game. After a brief drill yesterday the squad of 34 left for the West Coast and they won't get a real workout before reaching San Francisco Thursday.

The schedule for this evening is Lucky Strikes vs. Gulf Refining Company; Belle Isle Garage vs. Pinson Tire Company; Atlanta Paper Company vs. Atlanta Journal; Model Laundry vs. Bick's Bowling Center.

Interest is plenty will be centered on the Ladies' Commercial Duckpin league bowlers as they go into the second week of scheduled play at 8 o'clock tonight, for when these fair duckpin-smashers hit the pins they register big counts.

SOUTHERN STARS TAKE SPOTLIGHT WITH FINE PLAY

Feathers, Kercheval, Kelly and Hickman Lead Pro Battles.

By Ralph McGill.

Southern football stars were the boys who earned the pro-football headlines during the past week-end. Beatty Feathers, who finished last year at Tennessee with a great record of performance across three years of competition, led the Chicago Bears to a great victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers.

"Feathers," said a report of the game, "in making his debut here (New York), did everything but officiate and run the scoreboard. He flabbergasted the Dodgers with his zig-zag sprints and was superior to the highly touted Kercheval in kicking, getting off several boots of 60 yards and more."

Feathers was, according to Dan McGugin, the Vanderbilt coach, greater than any back he saw in the east or south last year. He is going along in pro ball in his old style.

Ralph Kercheval, last year with Kentucky, is starting for the Brooklyn team. Shipwreck Kelly, who starred with Kentucky three seasons ago, is also a star and scored the Dodgers' only touchdown against the Bears last Sunday. He ran 41 yards to score.

Other southern stars are playing with other teams, including "Father" Lumpkin, Tech's great fullback of 1928.

The Backs Must Have That Line.

Mention of "Stumpy" Thomson recalls his last season at Tech, the one of 1929. Thomson, one of the great halfbacks of 1927 and 1928, managed to play a great game but was never able to equal his performance of the previous two years. In 1929 he had no line in front of him.

There was never a halfback able to play without a good line and interference. They must have the boys to keep out the defense and give them an opening.

Southern California's brilliant Cotton Warburton, all-American sensation of last season, has been stopped in two games by the Duke line.

His line hasn't been able to give him a chance to go. Vanderbilt's running attack hasn't been very effective largely because of the Duke line's ability to pull out and get into the interference.

Another Star From Down South.

Another football star from down south, Alabama's Pitt, reported to hail from Opelika, is starting for the Sing Sing prison team in New York. The team is still being coached by John Law, who was the Duke star guard and former captain. The Sing Sing team is one which always plays in its home grounds.

Chick Meehan Gets Going Again.

Chick Meehan, who took New York University when it was a football nobody and made it one of the outstanding teams in the United States, seems to be on his way again at Manhattan College, New York. His team tied Kansas State last Saturday.

It will probably not be many years before Chick Meehan has his Manhattan team on the big-time schedules and will be packing them in at the Yankee stadium.

Meehan had ideas of showmanship. Not the least of these was the firing of a cannon each time his team scored a touchdown.

Yale's Squad Looks Dangerous.

While Yale was defeated last week by the Columbia eleven, Rose Bowl winners on January 1, 1934, the Yale eleven looked dangerous enough to cause future rivals to worry.

Georgia meets Yale on November 10 and the Yale eleven was rather tough for the Bulldogs last fall. Reports have it they tackled well against Columbia and showed a good knowledge of fundamentals, being late in offensive development.

They have a real running back at Yale, Larry Kelley, whom they believe will be greater than Albie Booth. He will have to be for Georgia to worry. Albie was easy for the Georgians. He never got going.

THE BREAK OF DAY

Continued From First Sports Page. I feel sorry for Mickey Cochrane. Little Bo Peep lost her sheep, but they came home, wagging their tails behind them. But Mickey Cochrane lost his hitters, and the boys never did show up.

I wish those Deans had missed the train to Detroit.

THE WEEK-END GAMES. Georgia Tech moves on to Durham for a tilt with Wallace Wade's Duke eleven on Saturday. The Georgia eleven remains at home to play North Carolina.

Tech goes along as the second choice in the betting, but I rather think the Jackets will make a game of it. They should break up the Duke pass game, which is just like Vanderbilt's, and they will then have to stop the running of Corky Cornelius, Wade's only real running threat.

Georgia meets what is probably the best North Carolina team since 1929. The Bulldogs will have their best foot forward, so to speak. And should win. But it will be a football game.

Tech's game will depend largely on Jack Phillips. The big fellow, after three weeks on the side line, was off in his timing against Vanderbilt. He should regain it by Saturday. If he is in there throwing passes, the Duke defense will have to be very, very spry to prevent some Tech touchdowns.

Tech looks ahead to Duke, Michigan and Tulane. And that is an assignment. I wish the Dean boys could help out Mr. Alexander.

Georgia looks ahead to North Carolina, Tulane and Alabama. Which is also a rugged assignment. A salesman for one of these dyes guaranteed to hide graying hair might do some business in the coaching quarters at Tech and Georgia.

JIM BROWNING BEATS BROWN

"Missouri" Jim Browning was awarded the referee's decision over Orville Brown Tuesday night at the auditorium after each combatant had won one fall in an exciting finish as has been witnessed at a wrestling match in Atlanta.

Charley Rentrop, the referee from Memphis, had warned Brown to watch his strangle hold, and the latter, angered at what he thought was impartiality in breaking a neck hold, struck Rentrop, sending him sprawling to the canvas. A second remonstrance from the referee brought another blow from the infuriated Brown, and Rentrop awarded Browning the match.

The fans were treated to some sparring act on the scheduled Orville Brown Tuesday night at the auditorium after each combatant had won one fall in an exciting finish as has been witnessed at a wrestling match in Atlanta.

Browning won the first fall in 35 minutes, catching his opponent in his famous airplane scissors after many futile attempts.

Brown took the second fall in six minutes with a series of arm locks that left Jim's arm numb. Brown could do very little with his right arm for the rest of the fight.

The finish came with 32 minutes time left. Charlie Strack defeated George Hills in the semi-final, and Andy Rasher took a fall from Ellis Beshare to win the opening bout.

Promoter Henry Weber announced that next week will make his fifth year in the business of the heavy weights, and that to celebrate the occasion and show his appreciation for the support given him, he will admit ladies free with a paid escort to any seat in the house.

Coach Carl Snavely has shaken up the second-string lineup considerably in an effort to develop needed reserve strength. Ralph Gardner was shifted to tackle, Harry Cooner signing his star hurler, Jerome Herman ("Dizzy") and Paul ("Daffy") Dean. To 1935 contracts would be just a breeze.

"I don't know when I'll sign them for the 1935 season," he said. "All I can say is that it will be taken up in due course. It will be our job to sign them when we'll do it."

WHAT NO BONUSES! Breardon said he had given no thought to bonuses for the Deans, who between them won 49 games in the National league and pitched all four of the Cardinals' victories over Detroit in the World Series.

He said flatly that fines assessed against Dizzy and Duffy for infractions of the rules some time ago would not be refunded.

"Frisch wouldn't stand for it," he commented.

Deans Sit on Top of Baseball World. DETROIT, Oct. 9.—In the wake of western dust, blown up by the two cyclonic Deans, the St. Louis Cardinals take their place today on the top plateau of baseball as the new champions of the world.

Riding along on the rubbery, loose-jointed arm of the dazzling Dizzy, they cut their way to the front through six Tiger pitchers and a wild and savage barrage of beer bottles, oranges and other hurling implements, composed of fruit, wood, iron and glass, thrown from the left field bleachers, that for 20 minutes turned the seventh game into a woolly riot that looked like the two battles of the Marne, with Verdun and Tannenberg thrown in.

Sling-shot Dizzy slaughtered six Tiger pitchers, 11 to 0, in this final foray of flying spikes, as he held the enemy to six scattered hits for the closing triumph of the dukedom of the Deans.

But it remained for Ducky-Wucky Medwick, the Cardinal Cossack, to steal a big part of the show and start one of the nearest yowling riots that any World Series has ever known.

The Vesuvian explosion that came near blowing up the ball game took place in the sixth inning. Ducky-Wucky, the Cardinal Cossack, had just tripled and driven Pepper Martin over with the eighth Cardinal run.

17,000 Lay Down Barrage. Medwick slid into Marvin Owen at third with the speed of a runaway horse. The impetuous carried Owen from his feet, and as they collided and fell together, Medwick threw a pair of shining spikes at Owen's legs—and the riot was on.

When Medwick started for his place in left field at the close of the inning, he was greeted with a fusillade and a salvo from the howling 17,000 in the left stands that quickly littered up the field and sent the Cossack from New Jersey into a hurried retreat.

For 20 minutes, the enraged bleachers laid down a barrage that would have stopped the charge of the First Division or the Prussian Guard.

The sunny autumn air was a whirling mass of missiles, fired from a 200-yard front, and the blue autumn skyline was almost hidden by the mass of fruit and glass, hurled by highly indignant arms.

After a delay of 20 minutes, Judge Landis, the mandarin of the game, heard all the evidence and sent Medwick from the park under a police guard.

The judge agreed with Messrs. Lenin, Trotsky and Stalin that the day of the Cossack was over. So Medwick was shipped to the iron mines of Siberia after he had hammered out 11 hits and had been a hard rider through most of the week.

Spotlight Plays on Deans. But, after all, riot or what not, it was the two country kids from Oklahoma, aged 21 and 23, who took charge of this seven-game show with all the mastery of a Booth or a Barrett, George M. Cohan or a Walter Huston, a Mansfield or an Arliss.

These two friendly, likable country kids from Holdenville, Okla., and the border lines of Arkansas first carried the Cardinals from a second division berth to the top of the pile.

In spite of fines and suspensions and brotherly strikes, they carved their way to 49 victories. On top of this, the same two kids from the brush and the bush, from the dust and the sage of the southwest, won all four Cardinal victories—four winning charges in five starts—for one of the most amazing dramatic drives beneath the great white spotlight that sport has ever known—and you can go back 4,000 years if you have the energy and the time.

The courthouse clerk of Holdenville, Okla., sent me this wire today—"There is no cypress—no weeping willow in Holdenville. Under our cottonwood and our maples the two Deans rule this game today."

Dizzy Keeps Up With Paul. "I've got to keep up with Paul," Dizzy said before the game. "I'd like to win anyway—I always like to win—but I can't let Paul down. He carried us to the seventh game. It's my time now and, if I have to, I'll just throw my arm off to show the two Deans still move together. I wouldn't let Paul down for anything in the world. A great pitcher? Sure, I know that. But he's a great kid on the side. I wish you knew him better. They don't come along like Paul. He's the finest kid you ever met in every way you can figure him out."

As the bulky figure of Babe Ruth fades out of the picture from the playing side—an old-fashioned three-masted schooner fading into the fog—two kids from the dust of the western trail take his place as the greatest sensations baseball has known—matching the glamor of Mathewson, Hans Wagner, Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth. But these two country kids have come along with a sudden blaze and flame that surpasses in its dramatic flourish the leaders of the old parade.

In one brief six months—from the dogwood of April to the crimson and orange tints of October—they have called upon two strong right arms to write one of the greatest of all the sporting classics.

They came up from the land where "the black snake glides and glitters and slides, into its nest in the cottonwood tree—where the buzzard sails on—and is gone—stately and still as a ship at sea"—where the dust of the plains is carried to the Rio Grande.

Pepper Martin's Comeback. And, in the midst of the Dean triumph, don't overlook Pepper Martin, who came back with a rushing, rowdy, ripping attack to regain the place he held a few years ago as one of the best ball players that ever carved.

Miss Penelope Brown Weds Dr. Barnett at St. Mark Church

The marriage of Miss Penelope Hollinshead Brown and Dr. Crawford Fannin Barnett Jr. was solemnized last evening at St. Mark Methodist church before a representative assemblage of relatives and friends. The occasion was marked by the impressive dignity and prior to the service a musical program was given by Miss Eda Bartholomew, the selections including Schubert's "Serenade," Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata," Liszt's "Liebestraum," Chopin's "Nocturne in F sharp major." During the ceremony Miss Bartholomew played softly Schumann's "Trauerlied." The wedding march from "Lohengrin" announced the approach of the bridal party and Bishop Warren A. Candler performed the ceremony, assisted by Dr. J. W. Johnson, pastor of St. Mark church. Beautiful decorations prevailed throughout the church with a color motif of green and white being developed by an attractive arrangement of palms, foliage plants, white asters, gladioli and Easter lilies. The wedding party stood on a raised platform before the altar, the platform being covered with heavy white crash. Palms and other tropical foliage banked the back of the pulpit and were arranged on either side of the chancel rail. In the center of the chancel rail was a large mound of white dahlias and asters from which arose a five-branched cathedral candelabrum holding white burning tapers. On either side of this beautiful floral arrangement were similar mounds of the white flowers which also held five-branched cathedral candelabra burning white tapers. The bride and groom stood before a white satin-covered prie-dieu adorned on either side by a cluster of Easter lilies. A basket of lilies stood in stately effect on the altar.

Wedding Attendants.
The ushers, who entered first, included Dr. Hal Davison, Mason Lowance, T. C. Davison and English McGeech. They were followed by the groomsmen, including Dr. Bird Daniel, of Claxton, Ga.; Dr. Francis Parker, of this city; John Stanley, of Washington, D. C.; Mike McElroy, of Madison, Ga.; Francis Mitchell, of Atlanta; Marcus Brown, of Jackson, Miss.; and Elijah Brown, of this city, the bride's brothers.

The bridesmaids descended the long aisles in pairs and were attractive figures wearing Lanvin models of turquoise blue chiffon velvet. The form-fitting bodices were made with the new bias treatment at shoulders with high necklines in front that extended into low square shape at the backs. Wide velvet girdles trimmed the striking gowns, the girdles being tied in graceful bows at the back with the ends of the ribbon extending to the end of short trains which was a graceful feature of the gowns. They carried bouquets of Rubrum lilies tied with American beauty ribbon. The bridesmaids included Misses Floyd Foster, of Madison, Ga.; Rosalind Johnson, of Savannah; Louise Stakeley, Sara Lane Smith and Alice Gray Harrison, of Atlanta; Mrs. W. B.

Pipkin, of Reidsville, N. C. The maid of honor and matron of honor, Miss Sally Spalding and Mrs. Joseph E. Brown, entered singly and they wore gowns like those worn by the maids and carried similar bouquets.

Lovely Bride.
The bride was accompanied to the altar by her brother, Joseph E. Brown, by whom she was given in marriage, and the groom was escorted by his best man, Dr. Edward Bosworth, of Rome, Ga. The bride's gown, which was that worn by her cousin, Mrs. Russell McKinney, of Chattanooga, Tenn., formerly Miss Louisa Shivers, of this city, at her wedding two years ago, was a beautiful creation of bluish white satin and rose point lace. A jacket, made with long sleeves, was fashioned of the lovely lace while the skirt was formed of the satin which extends into a three-yard length train. The bride's veil, which belongs to her aunt, Mrs. John Spalding, and has been worn by several brides in this distinguished family, was also fashioned of rose point lace and confined to her hair in cap shape by tiny clusters of orange blossom buds. She carried a round bouquet formed entirely of valley lilies and tied with ivory satin ribbon. The only ornament worn by the bride was a handsome pearl brooch, which was worn by the bride's mother at her wedding to the late Elijah A. Brown.

Mrs. Elijah A. Brown, the bride's mother, wore for this auspicious occasion a gown of white lace veiling white satin, and her shoulder bouquet was formed of delicately tinted orchids. Mrs. Crawford Barnett Sr., of Madison, Ga., the bridegroom's mother, was crowned in a model of rust-colored crepe and lace and she wore a shoulder cluster of bronze-shaded orchids.

Sail From New Orleans.
Dr. Barnett and his bride left early in the evening for New Orleans, from where they will sail for Vera Cruz. Before returning they will visit Mexico City, and upon their arrival here they will make their home in an apartment at 292 Eighth street. The bride traveled in a costume made of Hunter's green sheer wool fashioned with a modish short jacket trimmed with small green buttons up the back. Soft red fox fur trimmed the sleeves of the jacket and the bride wore a fur neckpiece of red fox. Brown accessories including a small brown felt hat completed the costume.

Among out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Dr. and Mrs. Crawford Barnett Sr., of Madison; Miss Katie Barnett, Mrs. Mary Stokes, Mr. and Mrs. Porter Stokes, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Foster and Miss Harriet Lawrence, all of Madison, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. James Patten, of Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Grange Cuthbert and Miss Alice Cuthbert, of Summerville, S. C.; Mrs. Martin Heard, of Elberton, Ga.; Miss Betty Peoples, of Savannah; Mrs. Sam Banks and Miss Virginia Banks, of Newnan, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Phillips Jones, also of Newnan.

Miss Stone Weds James M. McGill

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 9.—The marriage of Miss Nellie Mae Stone, attractive young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Stone, and James McGill, of Washington, Ga., was an interesting social event of Sunday, solemnized at the home of the bride's parents here. The nuptial rites were read by the bride's brother, the Rev. George Stone, of Chulahoma, assisted by the bride's uncle, the Rev. George Stone, of this city. The wedding music was played by Miss Florence Callahan at the piano, and Grady Callahan, violinist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and attended by her cousin, Miss Dorothy Stone, as maid of honor. The bridegroom was attended by Hon. Harden, of Atlanta, as best man. The flower girls were Linnie Jo Mull and Catherine Randolph, carrying French baskets of roses and wearing organdy frocks in the rainbow shades. The decorations of rich-hued garden flowers prevailed throughout the home, with a green and white color motif in the living room, where the young couple took their vows. An improvised altar of palms, ferns and smilax was interspersed with clusters of Madonna lilies and cathedral candles holding blue, white and pink flowers. The bride was handsome wearing an ensemble of navy blue crepe with hat and accessories to match. She wore a shower bouquet of roses and lilies. Miss Stone wore a gown of brown crepe and a shoulder cluster of pink roses. The bride's book was kept by Mrs. George Stone.

Jewish Women Sponsor Classes

Much interest is being shown in the class in child care to be given by the Atlanta section, National Council of Jewish Women, according to Mrs. Baron Asher, chairman of the education committee. The initial meeting of the groups will be held Tuesday, October 16, at 9:30 o'clock, at the Standard Club. At that time Mrs. Asher will discuss the series of help to mothers of children of all ages from preschool to adolescence. Those interested in registering for this group are urged to communicate with Mrs. Asher at Walnut 7533.

Mrs. Asher and her co-chairman, Mrs. David Marx, have planned another course to begin the first Friday in November at 10 o'clock at the Standard Club. At that time Mrs. Howard McCall, president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, will begin a series of six classes in the study of parliamentary law. Mrs. Henry Solomonson will resume her class in religious education at her home on Highland avenue on October 16 at 10:45 o'clock. The first book to be studied by the group will be Lewis Brown's much-discussed work, "How Old of God."

Winters-McClain.

Household Arts By ALICE BROOKS

MILKY WAY. Most appropriate name for a quilt, for what is lovelier than the Milky Way of the heavens? This quilt in its design has some of that same sparkle. It is richest made in two materials and it's really very simple to piece—you just start at the center and go round and round. The center, too, is simplified because the patches are in strips of the same width. All you need do is cut the material in strips and mix up the patches as you need them. The finished block is hexagonal.

AN ALL-OCCASION DRESS FOR THE LARGER WOMAN

The woman with a figure complex (and what woman over size 18 hasn't developed one) couldn't do better than to choose this becoming gown. Every line of it points its way to figure flattery—the surplus collar with a soft, double full of contrasting color falling from under it in the front and the pointed skirt with double and pleasant things for larger hips. This dress made of satin would be delightful for afternoons, or in a soft sheer for the office for town. Note the carefully placed tucks for fullness where it is most needed.

Pattern 2046 is available in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 takes 4-1/2 yards 39-inch fabric and 1-1/2 yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

For fifteen cents (15c) for this Lillian Mae pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. Be sure to state size.

Send for the new winter issue of the Lillian Mae pattern book and know what is new in smart clothes. It takes you through the whole of fashion from the latest to the latest. Not overlooking some alluring new house frocks...and bearing in mind the needs of the younger generation. Price of book 15 cents.

T. E. L. Class Holds Annual Luncheon

The annual luncheon of the Druid Hills Baptist T. E. L. class was held Friday at noon. The guests assembled to the strains of "Sailing, Sailing," and 170 members of the class sang "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," with Mrs. Byron Matthews at the piano. Seated at the captain's table were Dr. L. D. Newton, pastor; M. E. Coleman, teacher of the Men's Bible Class; Dr. Joseph Broughton, superintendent of the Sunday school; Meadames Frank Rogers, retiring president, and A. B. Brown, teacher.

Dr. Broughton gave the invocation followed by an address, "Where Are We Going?" by Mrs. Rogers. Mrs. Gerald Mitchell, accompanied by Mrs. John Felder, sang "I Love Life." After reading felicitations from the Young Matrons' Class, Mrs. Rogers presented a book, "The Emerald Lake" for all the speakers, and bowls of goldfish were presented to Meadames Mitchell, Felder and R. Woodall, the new president. A deeply spiritual message, "Fishers of Men," was presented by the pastor, Dr. Newton. Mrs. Woodall spoke briefly of "The Tackle" and Mrs. Brown concluded the program, presenting silver sherbet cups to Mrs. Rogers in appreciation of her two years of splendid work as president. The table decorations, place cards and favors carried out the nautical setting. Mrs. A. B. Brown, chairman, assisted by Meadames V. S. Taylor and D. Summers, prepared the year-book for 1934-35 and a copy was given to each member.

"Fishing permits" given by Dr. Broughton, went to the following officers: Mrs. M. R. Woodall, president; Mrs. L. L. Gellestedt, first vice president; Mrs. Robert Moore, second vice president; Mrs. C. P. Aiken, third vice president; Mrs. L. E. Peek, fourth vice president; secretary, Mrs. A. D. Summers; assistant secretary, Mrs. V. S. Taylor; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Frank Rogers; treasurer, Miss Sue Norris; reporter, Mrs. P. L. Johnson; chairman of sick committee, Mrs. E. H. Siebert; secretary, Mrs. E. H. Siebert; chairman of social service, Mrs. George Edwards; assisted by Mrs. George C. Smith; hostesses, Mrs. M. E. Coleman, assisted by Mrs. T. A. Nash; Mrs. Byron Matthews, pianist. Group leaders are Meadames W. A. Backus, L. E. Pitts, J. W. Humphreys, C. S. Ray, W. L. Shackelford, C. C. Sheffield, R. L. Terrell, W. C. Thompson, W. M. Turner, E. B. Wortham, and Gladys W. Scruggs. The luncheon was prepared by Mrs. A. D. Summers, assisted by two groups of the class and table appointments were in charge of Mrs. M. E. Coleman. Miss Carrie Broughton, teacher of the T. E. L. class of the Baptist church of Raleigh, N. C., was a guest at the luncheon.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence should be addressed to the editor, The Constitution, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

I live in the suburbs of a city with my mother very old and feeble. I have to be at home with her day and night, never getting out to be with friends or to go to a movie. My husband is dead and there is no one for me to turn to. I gave up the opportunity to marry a man who lives far away from here because I knew my mother at her age and in her state of health could never be contented with a man who would leave her alone. A bachelor who is known as a heart-breaker is coming to see me but he doesn't speak of love. I find myself growing more and more interested in him and becoming impatient for him to say something. I am lonely and hungry for companionship and I am in need of wise advice. Please give it. H. F. L.

Answer:

There are some people in the world who appear to be marked for sacrifice. They make one and instead of being absorbed by the sacrifice, they are left with a heart-breaker. Perhaps they are no different from the general run in that they are unselfish. They are necessary to the world, and while the more selfish have the same sort of opportunities but ignore them and look out for number one.

This dress made of satin would be delightful for afternoons, or in a soft sheer for the office for town. Note the carefully placed tucks for fullness where it is most needed.

Things That Make Women More Beautiful

They Sell It for Cleansing, But It Is A Fine Foundation and Stimulant

By MIGNON.

A new cream that has a fascinating freshness about it and that is good to the last little smidge of it is advertised for cleansing. I imagine some people who use soap and water first find it is all right for that. Personally I didn't have any luck at all for it for cleansing and I surprised myself when I found it was so good.

Never, she said, had she heard that complaint before.

But, I told her, I haven't found a better foundation cream for my skin. I thought its stimulating qualities were something not to be overlooked. She admitted that it contained one of the finest and oldest stimulating ointments for skin, sloughy skin.

I wanted to use it because of its richness and its delicate fragrance that is much like the perfume of woods after it rains. Sort of piney, woody scent. So what I did was use a liquid cleanser or soap and water and then use this cream. That wasn't dry skin. I thought it was a dry skin. So I compromised this way. A good soap and water cleansing, a good rich cream, thoroughly wiped away far removed from her skin, I am now so enthusiastic about, I can't stop.

one thing that will make a sane choice. It is loneliness. If there is one thing that will make an otherwise well-balanced woman flop over on the wrong side of her heart-hunger for companionship, for some body to talk to and swap ideas with. An old and feeble mother cannot fill a woman's life and if it is financially possible she can arrange with some outside to come in and stay with her mother while she goes about a bit. If this is not possible then surely there are neighbors and friends who will lend a helping hand.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

Although I am 18 my father won't let me have any dates. I have been going to my sister's home to meet my friend and she has asked me to come and live with her. I can have some freedom. I don't know what to do, whether to leave my father's home or to stay there and put up with his strict rules. What would you do? P. P.

Answer:

What have you to offer your sister for taking you in? Who is going to buy your clothes? Who is going to pay your bills? How does your brother-in-law feel about your making your home with him? The more important still, what does the boy friends offer as compensation for your leaving your home, angering your father and alienating yourself from him? Has he a good job, can he talk turkey? If you will answer these questions you can come to a sensible decision about the move.

At 18 you should have more liberty than your father gives you. You are having a difficult time of it to safeguard you now and in the future, and through utter ignorance of a young girl's mind and heart, he makes rules that are too stringent and defeat his purpose. Perhaps with your sister's help you can make him see his mistake. Don't leave home until you have done your utmost to convert your father to your viewpoint.

Culbertson on Contract

Give and Take.

The play of many hands can be likened to a rough and tumble fight. Both sides take turns at giving and taking, and the side which gives the most and is forced to take the least eventually wins out. As in a free-for-all, science sometimes gives way to impulse. Both teams try to keep their wits about them, but sometimes in the excitement and heat of the moment they lose control.

In today's hand both the defense and the declarer made a series of brilliant plays. The defense finally weakened, however, and made the first slip, which enabled the declarer to finish his contract.

Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

South West North East
1♥ Pass 1♠ Pass
2NT Pass 3♠ Pass
3NT Pass Pass Pass

Against the three-trump contract West opened his fourth heart diamond. The East player was faced with a problem almost immediately. He could come up with the ace and return the queen of the suit; he could play the queen and thus probably prevent a hold-up by the declarer in case the latter had the king and aces; or he could go up with the ace and shift. After some thought, East very brilliantly decided, despite the fact that his partner had led the heart, to play the declarer for some sort of double stopper in it. He accordingly went up with the diamond ace and shifted to the heart ten.

South was equal to the occasion. Without any hesitation, he went up with the ace, thus giving the East player the impression that he had the ace and king and did not fear the suit. Then he led the queen of spades from his own hand and West covered with the king. The king, however, was not there, and the queen won.

South was equal to the occasion. Without any hesitation, he went up with the ace, thus giving the East player the impression that he had the ace and king and did not fear the suit. Then he led the queen of spades from his own hand and West covered with the king. The king, however, was not there, and the queen won.

At any rate, East won the trick with the spade ten, and now had to make his final decision. On the first trick, when the ten had been led and South had gone up with the ace, West had discarded the four-spot, fearing that to throw the eight might sacrifice a potential trick, since South had bid the suit. In addition, South's play of the heart ace without any hold-up or finesse had completely fooled East, and the latter had decided to shift back to diamonds as his last hope. He led the queen and South now had the rest of the tricks, making four-odd.

South's line of play was praiseworthy from start to finish. The play of the heart ace and the manner of playing the spade suit being the main features. East's shift at trick 2 was well timed, and his holding out of spades after being allowed to hold the king, but West's slight slip in failing to signal with the heart 8, and thus aiding South in fooling East marked the undoing of the defense.

DAILY SHORT STORY

FOR PETE'S SAKE

Mary Tried Her Best To Be Brave and Cheer Her Husband

While He Hunted for a Job.

By DOROTHY AGARD ANSLEY.

The man trudging up the narrow stairway started and smiled as he caught the gay words. The smile erased the lines of fatigue and fear and showed him unexpectedly young.

He paused, straightening his shoulders and tilling his chin before the door whence came heartening sizzles and smells and the hummer of song.

He listened and heard:

"I'll get by

As long as I have you;

Though there be rain,

And darkness, and cold,

I'll not complain.

I'll see it through . . ."

As the last note died he flung open the door.

"Hi there, sweetest!" he called.

"Here you?"

The girl in the pink apron turned away from the three-burner. "Why, Pete! Sweet-Pete! You're early!" And was Peter to blame if he missed the signs of recent tears in the blue eyes he bent to kiss?

"No—no luck, dear?" She hated to ask, but she had to know. It mattered so terribly—more even than he knew—now. She shuddered, remem-&lt;/

New Offensive Plans Bared By Rebel Leaders in Spain

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)
MADRID, Oct. 9.—Spain's six-day red revolt was a dangerous mass of embers tonight, flaring into gunfire here and there over the nation as the conservative government of Premier Alejandro Lerroux remained in power at the opening of congress.

Former Premier Manuel Azana, one of those sought at Barcelona following the smashing of a separatist revolt Sunday, was arrested tonight. He was found hiding in Barcelona at the home of a Dr. Gubernes, and had taken refuge on a balcony while police were searching the house.

With him was arrested a syndicalist leader, Senor Pestana, friend of the imprisoned Catalan president, Lluís Companys.

Tenaciously the socialist and communist rebels held on in northern Spain, rallying at Oviedo, Asturias province, and barricading themselves against attack in the city's labor district.

The army was awaiting reinforcements before attacking. A column of troops under General Eduardo Lopez Ochoa was moving into the mining district where rebels held other strongholds.

Ochoa's forces were reported to have encountered centers where rebels had slaughtered entire garrisons of civil guards, including their wives and families. More than 400 guards were said to have been killed.

Death Toll Heavy.
The national death toll was impossible to count. It was estimated at from 500 to 1,000, with other thousands wounded and imprisoned.

Military authorities were preparing against reports of rebel plans to attack again tonight in several parts of the country simultaneously, especially in Andalusia.

The rebels' committee of strategy in Madrid, interviewed by the Associated Press in the utmost secrecy behind locked doors, indicated a trump card still remained to be played.

A revolutionary leader said a nationwide "desperate offense" was planned at a given signal "that will launch our entire forces on the streets in one attack upon government offices, banks and other strategic centers necessary to our cause."

The government, however, was acting on the assumption that a mop-up campaign now in progress would finish the revolution.

Cries of "Long Live Lerroux! Long live the republic!" resounded through the halls of congress at the opening session. The galleries were crowded

WORNOUT FARM LAND IS PURCHASED BY U. S.

Families Will Be Transplanted as Tracts Used as Parks, Preserves.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Purchase by the government of a million acres of sub-marginal farm land, from which whole families have been or will be transplanted, was reported today by Harry L. Hopkins, the relief administrator.

"Federal buyers now are contracting for still more of the same type of arid or worn-out farm land. It will be turned into parks, forests, game preserves and Indian reservations. Most of the purchasing so far has been in the middle and far west and the southeast."

Obviously enthusiastic about the venture, Hopkins, in an interview, gave this explanation of its aims:

"The interview was the first of trustees of the Carnegie library who had been buying or option taking in the ordinary office Tuesday after a request of $2,500 and personal property to a brother, J. M. Silverman, and several small bequests to employees, leaves the residue of the estate to Dr. Silverman's mother, Mrs. Sophia Silverman; two sisters, Misses Laura and Janice Silverman, and a brother, M. H. Silverman."

Major James L. Key will leave this morning to attend a sectional meeting of the Georgia Mayors' Association to be held at Americus. The group will be guests of Mayor James A. Fort, of Americus, who is treasurer of the state organization. Key is president of the state body.

Arrest of Youth, 17,
Wipes Out 'Rate Killer'
CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—(AP)—At the very special rate of three for $25, the International Knights of the Black Cross would do away with anybody you didn't like.

"We bump off anyone," read the circular of the organization, up to midnight last night.

The bargain offer ended with the arrest of Nick Kerrill, 17-year-old high school graduate. Prosecutor John S. Boyle said today the boy had admitted he was the "International Knights" in person.

Cross Sections of Life In Gate City of South

Womanless wedding will be held at the J. C. Harris school on Lucile avenue at 8:15 o'clock Friday night, under the auspices of the Gordon Street Presbyterian Sunday school.

Midweek service at the Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist church will be conducted by W. F. Dykes, principal of North Fulton High school. Services will begin at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night.

Si-De-Ka Club will honor the active chapters of Sigma Delta Kappa at a smoker to be given at 9 o'clock Wednesday night at the Robert Fulton hotel.

Teachers' and workers' meeting will be held at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday night at the Peachtree Christian church's Sunday school. The Rev. R. W. Burnes and Colonel J. W. Crenshaw will speak.

Monthly meeting of the board of trustees of the Carnegie library will be held at 5 o'clock this afternoon at the main library.

Will of Dr. S. L. Silverman filed in the ordinary office Tuesday after a request of $2,500 and personal property to a brother, J. M. Silverman, and several small bequests to employees, leaves the residue of the estate to Dr. Silverman's mother, Mrs. Sophia Silverman; two sisters, Misses Laura and Janice Silverman, and a brother, M. H. Silverman.

Dr. Louis D. Newton will go to LaGrange today to speak at the annual session of the Western Baptist Association, meeting in that city.

Rev. C. H. Mount, missionary to Africa, will speak at the monthly meeting of the Friends of Israel Prayer League at 3 o'clock Thursday at the reading room of the Central Baptist church.

Big Bethel church choir will present "Heaven Bound" at 8 o'clock Wednesday night at the Bethel church. The play will be given for the benefit of the Jefferson Street M. E. church.

"Restoration" will be the subject of a lecture to be given at 8 o'clock Wednesday night at the Azoth library, Marion hotel.

Dr. Champ H. Holmes, of Atlanta, is attending the meeting of the Southern Tuberculosis Association at Knoxville, Tenn.

R. H. Parks, of a Decatur street address, and Mrs. Sallie Mize, of a Crew street address, were arraigned before Recorder Judge John Cone Tuesday on disorderly conduct charges. They averred it was merely a lover's quarrel and Judge Cone placed them on probation with the admonition to "sweeten each other" for the next six months.

Joe E. Wiley, 47, veteran policeman, of 689 Home avenue, S. E., was arraigned at Grady hospital Tuesday following a severe heart attack suffered Monday afternoon while on duty at the city hall.

Dr. W. H. Knight, conducting a revival series of services at the Baptist tabernacle, will speak at 7:30 o'clock tonight on the subject "That Strange Man Upon His Cross."

Joe Coleman, 24-year-old mechanic, was admitted to Grady hospital Tuesday for observation. He said he had been bitten by a spider. His shoulder was swollen and his body covered with a rash physicians believed caused by the bite.

William Whitten, 22, of Avondale Estates, was ordered held for the grand jury under a $1,000 bond on five counts of larceny Tuesday when arraigned in recorder's court. Detectives R. C. McGill and R. G. Polard who arrested Whitten on September 27, said when he was taken into custody he was in possession of two purses. He had been going through buildings and picking up articles found in offices the detectives charged.

Margaret Braselton, 9, of 907 Edgewood avenue, was admitted to Grady hospital Tuesday for observation after she had fallen backwards while playing near her home and stuck a nail in her back.

Donovan Paulk, 3-year-old son of Mrs. M. W. Paulk, 452 Sinclair avenue, was treated at Grady hospital Tuesday to prevent any after effects from eating a toadstool. The child's mother found him eating the toadstool, administered an emetic and then carried him to the hospital where his stomach was washed out.

Blue and Gold, the Mariet College monthly paper, was off the press Tuesday. This issue features a football, giving an account of the Blue Devils, champions of the N. G. I. C. in 1933.

Jack King has been elected president of the senior class of Mariet College. John Beall was elected vice president and Anthony O'Donnell secretary and treasurer.

Rev. Ryland Knight, pastor of the Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist church, and Mrs. Knight are in Clarksville, Tennessee.

Pete Williams, who operates a restaurant at 297 Angier avenue, was shot in the shoulder by one of four negroes who attempted to hold up his place of business Tuesday night. Williams' wound proved merely a flesh wound when examined at Grady hospital and he was treated and dismissed.

Collins Bird, assistant manager of the Robert Fulton hotel, and Mrs. Bird will fly to New Orleans today to attend the American Hotel Association convention there from October 10 to 13.

Navy and Marine Corps Officers' Club will meet at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Robert Fulton hotel.

Si De Ka Club will entertain with a smoker at 9 o'clock tonight at the Robert Fulton hotel. Ed Johnson, of the Atlanta Title and Trust Company, is president.

Mrs. R. M. Travis, of 824 Brookridge drive, N. E., reported to police Tuesday night that burglars entered her home at about 9 o'clock and escaped with two purses containing $30 in cash and a check for $100.

Ben Stein, operator of a store at 510 Washington street, was robbed of $40 in cash by three negroes who held him up Tuesday night, he reported to police. He said two of the bandits were armed.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Oct. 9.—Robert Allan Edwards, convicted slayer of his friend and neighbor, Fred McKechnie, today filed a petition for a new trial on the grounds one of the jurors in the first trial had prejudged the case and had frequently expressed a determination to "burn" the young mine surveyor.

MAIL SUBSIDY PROBE SHOWS BIG PAYMENTS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The postoffice department today delved deeply into bulging files of ocean mail contracts to trace the alleged maneuvering of government officials to insure a $5,500,000 contract for the Colombian Steamship Company, Inc.

Over the strenuous objection of counsel for the company, documents and records were presented which purported to show:

1. That the Colombian line in 1928 won the higher bidder in competition with the United Fruit Company on a contract covering the New York to Porto Colombia route.

2. That United Fruit protested to the postoffice department that the bid was "inadequate" and not in compliance with the law.

3. That Postmaster-General New raised technical objections to the United bid and suggested that McArthur might recommend that the Colombian line change its bid to meet the competition.

4. That United protested to President Coolidge that "certain officials of the government" were seeking to discriminate against it.

5. That McArthur ordered both bids thrown out and that New appealed to the postoffice department to "modify" his decision so that the Colombian company could get the contract.

6. That in 1929 an interdepartmental committee composed of representatives of the commerce, navy and postoffice departments and the shipping board proposed an arrangement whereby the United Fruit company would be able to bid on three other routes and that specifications for the New York-Porto Colombia route were so framed to permit the Colombian company to bid without difficulty.

C. W. Hassall, postoffice department attorney, offered records to show that the contract was finally awarded in 1929 and from April 1, 1929, to June 30, 1934, the Colombian company received $1,793,179 in subsidies and would receive $3,728,078 more before the ten-year contract expires.

"IT SEEMS to me that the occasional smoker is a better judge of a cigarette than the constant smoker. At least, he's more critical.

"Off the screen, I never smoke. On the screen, I smoke when the part demands it.
And I want a cigarette that is non-irritating, mild and easy on the throat.

"After trying many brands, I settled upon Old Gold as my 'picture smoke.' It's delightfully smooth—and free of bite—and doesn't give the least discomfort to the throat."

The net of it is this, Miss West:
No better tobacco grows than is used in Old Gold. And it's pure. That's why Old Golds are easy on the THROAT and NERVES.
